Irony in Short Stories

English 7
Winter

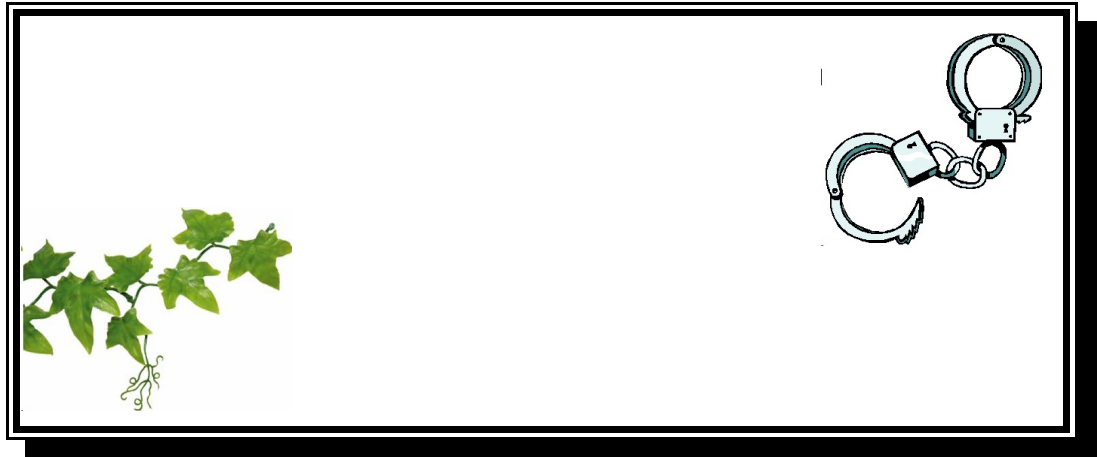

Many authors use irony to surprise their readers. Using O. Henry's "The Last Leaf" and "After Twenty Years," show how irony makes the reader think one thing will happen and then another does. Use your Two Panda sheet to organize your thoughts, and then write a rough draft of your 8 sentence paragraph. Once you have had your work checked by a teacher, type your paragraph and hand it in with this rubric.

REMEMBER:

- capitalize all names, including titles of stories
- put quotation marks around short story titles
- use a conventional boring font, no larger than 12 pts.

Write examples of irony from both stories in the box to the right.
